The car, a Toyota Corolla, was almost overturned after being smashed by two people early in the morning on Sunday, September 23. Advertisement Police said a 36-year-old Victorian man was driving his car when he hit the back of a parked truck, sending his vehicle spinning into the oncoming lane of Mitchell St, near Chadstone. Witnesses said it appeared the car hit a sign and came to a standstill. Police said the driver got out of the car and flagged down help. A passing man stopped and helped the driver and, despite attempts from the car's passengers to prevent him from doing so, he then managed to get the keys from the car and remove it from the roadway. The man then called an ambulance for the driver. But before paramedics arrived, the man appeared to have another bad run-in. Witnesses say the man was attacked by another man, who pushed him to the ground and threw the keys at him. Police confirmed a man was attacked at the scene, but did not confirm the identity of the victim. The driver died at the scene. No charges have been laid. "A family's life has been shattered and they've lost a loved one and our community has lost a valued member," police said in a statement. "We understand that this incident is tragic, but we need to know what happened and why." The driver's family thanked those who helped. "We would also like to say that our family appreciates the efforts of the Good Samaritan and will be forever grateful for the way he acted, which we believe prevented a worse outcome," they said. "Our family would also like to thank the police for their ongoing efforts in this matter."Endothelial dysfunction is involved in the pathogenesis of atherosclerosis and has been implicated in the microcirculatory pathogenesis of many
