>>Thanks. My Internet connection has been very intermittent over the last couple of days. So I decided to set up a new machine so that I can be on here when it's available. I have just installed Windows XP SP3 on a Compaq I500 late Model and it seems to be OK. The only other PC I could get was a Compaq m7060: Compaq Presario 1505WN. It has the same XP SP3 installed. It has the same problem. The same hiss when I hit a key.

There is no difference in the keyboard mnemonics. Well it seems that I have no other choice but to buy a new keyboard, it's a Compaq I500 keyboard. The only Compaq Keyboard I've seen that does not have a strange beeping noise on keys that have a proper setup when the Microsoft Keyboard Language and Keyboard Layout are used. But I would like to try to identify the problem. Could it be the sound card? Could it be the keyboard? Could it be the motherboard? I have not put an audio card in this box yet, I don't want to damage the new keyboard. It's the same with the keyboard and the USB ports. What should I try? I am open to any ideas. The sheer amount of content, along with the beautiful art and animation definitely put the game above the rest. Since I have been playing the game for the past few months, I have been collecting every achievement for it. I just recently got everything in the game in one folder.

But I wasn't collecting all of the achievements. I didn't bother collecting all of the cosmetic items in the game, either. While I just recently acquired everything in the game, I was trying to pick up all of the items I used to put in my backpack at one point in the game. I just picked up a Cleric's Tasset, Link's Onmyodo and the Master Sword, one at a time, and I thought it'd be cool if I didn't have to play through the game all over again just to collect all of these items. I played the game for the first time back on the WiiU, and I was thinking it'd be funny to just beat the game by avoiding things like statues, an item that wasn't around back then. Sadly, that's not the case. There are still quite a few items you'll need to get, if you want to do some of these "challenges" in order to collect every achievement in the game. But here's the thing. The achievements are mostly just cosmetic. Some are based on "locations" you go to. While some items are needed in certain places, it's not 09e8f5149f
