Betancourt was noted for his struggles against the socialist revolution and for his superior work with the poor as well as for his time spent in the missions in the Philippines during the early 1900s. He was ordained on 13 March 1896 and was later made a professed member of the Marist Order in 1929. The process for his beatification opened in the 1950s under Pope John XXIII while the formal title for his cause came on 13 July 1979 after Pope John Paul II approved the formal opening of the cause. Life Luis Betancourt was born in 1874 as the seventh child to José María Betancourt (1833–1874) and María Dolores Urquijo in the town of Navarro in Spain. He was baptised in the town of Guadalfece the following day on 14 January 1874 while his godparents were Manuel Diaz and Francisco Urquijo. He had twelve brothers and sisters. Betancourt was educated in Navarro and later attended the local commercial school. In 1887 he began to attend the Marist Order's school and was ordained on 13 March 1896 - although he was not yet 21 - in order to 1cb139a0ed
