"I'm not happy at what I'm reading," the Republican nominee told reporters on Air Force One when asked about the decision. "I'm just saying that you people in the media, you are a sick group." When pressed further, Trump said he was "a little unhappy, to be honest with you" about the move. "I am not happy at all with what is being done," he added. "So I just want everybody to understand, I'm not happy, I'm not happy at what's going on, but at the same time, I'm not going to go out and be totally negative and say the sky is falling," he said. "I would like to take a look and see what he's been doing." The President's eldest son, Donald Trump Jr., tweeted that "everybody is happy" about the Comey firing. The CEO of Lockheed Martin, Marillyn Hewson, applauded Trump's decision in a series of tweets. "I'm glad to see Director Comey go. Looked like a total disgrace. Acted very, very badly. Totally conflicted. Completely biased and wrong." She added: "The American people deserves [sic] better and so do we. Pray for FBI!" Amanda Berry is seen through 5b5f913d15

While her husband was out doing his job, she was dealing with the kids, all the homework and preparations for the school year. She was about to lose it and her husband, yet again. It had been a tough day. Her youngest had argued with her about a DVD they were supposed to watch. Her oldest was doing something he was not supposed to be doing. Both kids were getting into trouble. Yet Sarah had given up trying to reason with them. "I can't do this. I'm about to lose it," she thought as she began to cry. She ran to the phone and dialed her husband's number. His cell phone was turned off and he wasn't answering her calls. What was she going to do? She was on the verge of losing it, the whole family. Sarah saw a police officer approaching her and her kids in the front yard. She ran to him and informed him that her husband was missing. The officer, in his little squad car, rushed to Sarah's house. He checked the house, even looked into the back yard. He noticed something that looked like a foot sticking out from under some bushes. He pulled out the foot and it was indeed, her husband. The officer had been trained to deal with this situation. He knew that if he didn't deal with this right away, her husband could die. "What should I do with the body?" the officer asked himself. He pulled out a blanket and placed it over the man. He ran back to his squad car, grabbed the blanket and wrapped it around the husband. As he was about to drive off with the man, he said, "I don't know what to do with this body." He turned to the officer who was sitting in the passenger seat. ♦
