Design, synthesis, in vitro antitumor activity, and computational studies of bisindolylacetylenes. A series of novel bisindolylacetylenes have been synthesized and evaluated for their activity against one colorectal (HT-29) and two breast cancer (MDA-MB-453 and T47D) cell lines. The majority of the compounds were found to be extremely active against HT-29 and T47D cells, with IC(50) values in the low micromolar range. Tumor cell growth inhibition and induction of apoptosis in these cell lines were associated with activation of the p53 pathway, as well as caspase-3-like activity. These results were further supported by the high-throughput cocomputational simulations which showed the favorable interaction energy (hydrogen bond, van der Waals, and dispersion) of the compounds with the p53 protein.

Q: React - Store and retrieve userDataSource variable in login function I am trying to build a login function to a reactJS project using setInterval and storing the username and password in a userDataSource. I then want to retrieve them and send them to the server to validate. I have a working login function using localStorage and I tried to implement this using the userDataSource. I kept getting the error: TypeError: data
