Additional text and descriptions are welcome! Volume Tiny Source Code: The Shiny Objects library is a collection of smaller libraries which help me in the development of a new project of mine. Two of them are the ViewFramework and the DataMapper, the first one which contains basic widgets, and the second one with complex widgets. In this post, you will learn how to use the DSV-Tool (DataMapper View Framework) and its widgets. Check the whole project on GitHub! First of all, we will need to include the DataMapper and the ViewFramework libraries on the projects, for this, we will use the cmake tool. In this tutorial we will learn how to animate a list of images using the jQuery Cycle2 plugin. In this tutorial we will use 3 pictures and 4 jQuery Cycle2 images: The CSS: .thumbnail { margin: 15px 0px 10px 0px; width: 100%; height: 100%; } .thumbnail img { width:100%; } .thumbnail.title { margin: 10px 0px 15px 0px; display: inline; } The HTML: Thumb 1 Thumb 2 Thumb 3 add the tinywidget.js file to your page and put a template of your choice in the tinywidget.html file (and a "Tiny Widget Icon" in the Tiny Widget Toolbox). If you need other information: Posted by: elaybarrow Date: January 7, 2011 10:03 AM For a similar widget, see "Adobe SoundBat 1.1".
