I'm using libgdx with Java 1.8.4 (XCode 6.3.3). I try to render something in libgdx in my main app: public class MyApp implements Screen{ ..... public void create() { stage = new Stage(new StretchViewport(width, height)); } public void render(float delta) { stage.act(delta); stage.draw(); } public void pause() { stage.pause(); } public void dispose() { stage.dispose(); } } Everything is well working except that every time I call the stage.dispose() method, I get the following warning: The application has crashed. No such slot 'getDispose' in class 'Stage'. On the other hand, everything works perfect when I call stage.dispose() in a normal class without implements Screen in my MyApp class. I suspect that the problem occurs when I call the dispose method of libgdx in my main app (a class which implements Screen in the libgdx app). I used to work on my project with Java 1.7 in XCode 6.1.1 and everything works fine but with the java 1.8 I faced this problem. I've tried to find out how to solve the problem with Java 1.7 version of libgdx but
