addEventListener not working on dynamically created elements I'm trying to make a custom drag and drop menu using an image map.
I've changed the z-index value and it works fine, but the addEventListener doesn't seem to be working. This is my code:
window.onload = function() { var
map =
document.getElementById("map") var img = document.getElementById("image")
var draggable =

img.cloneNode(false)
map.appendChild(draggable)
draggable.style.position =
"absolute" draggable.style.z-index = "0" draggable.addEventListener(" dragstart", function() { alert("works!") }, false) document.b ody.appendChild(draggable) } A:

You're calling `addEventListener()` on an element that is not yet appended to the DOM. This will never work, not even after you add it to the DOM. You should call it inside a DOM ready handler or bind your function
