Why don't you read the information from here.Â .Cut from a masterpiece by Pablo Picasso, "Le Premier Cubiste," has moved from the MusÃ©e Picasso to the Klimt Estate in Belvedere Castle, Austria. The suite was sold for $238.3 million to an anonymous buyer on Friday night in an auction that lifted $285.2 million over pre-sale estimates. A work by the symbolist painter Ernest Samarian in a Greek style was also sold in the art world auction in New York. The other nine works from the estate's Picasso collection had all come from the world-renowned artist's personal collection, which had been made available for auction in New York on Thursday. According to the auction house Christie's, the cut-out work is the "most famous" Picasso (in the singular) and was discovered by artist Joan MirÃ³ in 1969. It is number two in terms of value to be sold from Picasso's personal collection after "La baignade" (1912). The Spanish artist created "Le premier cubiste" in 1900 as a gift for his close friend and lover, painter AmÂ±a Gravesande-Picot. The lost work was for some reason never put into circulation, and the only one in existence is the one at the Klimt Estate. The work is estimated to sell for between $100 to $200 million. The Egyptian state-owned museum bought the work in the 1970s when it was offered to them by the French dealer Serge Sabatier. Today the building on Avenue du MuseÃ®e is better known as the Klimt Estate.Q: What happens when you give someone a message in a text box?
