plants in alkaline metal-contaminated soils.
Numerous studies have investigated the distribution of metals in soils and plants, but few have considered the combined processes of metal uptake by roots and diffusion to leaves. This study applied a coupled diffusion and transport model to simulate the uptake of cobalt, manganese, nickel and zinc in Populus angustifolia and Pennisetum alopecuroides (hog fescue) from soil contaminated with alkaline-earth metals.
Analysis of simulated metal fluxes indicated that plant uptake of metals was not affected by the organic acids (such as citric acid) in soils. The initial free metal concentration in soil was the most important factor affecting metal uptake in plants, and biomass and leaf-to-soil ratio had minor impacts on metal uptake. The estimated mass ratio of metals in the root to the plant (root-

The barcode type, data, quantity, and printing options should be selected prior to generating the barcode. If you start and run the standalone, the selected barcode type is automatically converted to an add-in with the selected data options and the preview is activated. The generated barcode can be printed directly from Excel, Word, or Access by clicking the "Print" button from the preview pane. This add-in runs without installation. To generate barcodes in Microsoft Access, use BarCodeWiz Code 128 Barcode Fonts and the included functions. Barcodes and glossary: BarCodeWiz UPC EAN Barcode Fonts Notes: Free Trial: For some reason, the standalone doesn't provide the licensing for the barcode style options, so you have to buy the add-on module which provides you with all the licensed themes. Otherwise you can only generate UPC EAN barcodes. How to update? As stated above you don't have to install the standalone or the add-in as it's already installed in the MS Word

$$t_{k+1} = t_k + \rho \lambda^k$$ t_k for $k=0$ to ∞ Tau variables are defined for some $a > 1$, and when $\lim_{k \rightarrow \infty} \rho^k \lambda^k = 0$ and then at the end of the book the author define

$$\tau := \lim_{k \rightarrow \infty} t_k$$

$$\frac{t_k}{k} = \lim_{k \rightarrow \infty} \frac{\rho \lambda^k}{\rho^k \lambda^k} = \rho$$

$$\lim_{k \rightarrow \infty} \frac{\lambda^k}{\lambda^k} = \rho$$

$$\lim_{k \rightarrow \infty} \frac{\lambda^k}{\lambda^k} = \rho \lim_{k \rightarrow \infty} \lambda^k = \rho.$$

In this situation, what would be the value of a ?

a in the statement is needed because $$\rho \lambda^k = a \rho^k \lambda^k$$ for all $k \in \mathbb{N}$ (the a comes from using the algebraic manipulation rule)

A: $a = \rho$. Note that the book said that $a > 1$ but the equation $\rho = \lim_{k \rightarrow \infty} \lambda^k$ must have

$\lambda < 1$
