Contents Overview Photoshop is the Adobe Program for digital photography, allowing users to crop, manipulate, combine, enhance, and retouch images. It is a very flexible tool, as seen by its many functions, special features, and its simplicity to use. The program is layered which is a raster imaging system. It features a two-dimensional layer that can be moved, removed, masked and modified to include color, effects, layers, selections, text, and transparency. Photoshop's layers allow for non-destructive processing of images. Photoshop has become the industry standard for image editing and sharing. It was first released in 1996 and is still the most common tool for image manipulation and altering. Adobe Photoshop CS6 Photoshop uses layers that allows users to create new layers by choosing files from the "layers palette" window. Once a new layer is created, users can work on the image using various tools that can be found through the image. Adobe Photoshop CS6 is the most recent version of the program. It comes with many new features and a revamped interface that allows more tools to be used. There are two versions available. Photoshop Elements 7 Photoshop Elements is a simplified version of Photoshop, used for basic image editing. It uses a non-destructive image editing workflow. It is the best option for beginners looking to learn how to edit photos. It uses the same program as Photoshop CS6 with only a few limited features, but is not as robust. Typical workflows Many photographers start their image editing with a RAW photo. This is a high-resolution, raw image that contains all the original information. RAW files are captured without being processed, so the only option is to edit them with software like Photoshop. With the introduction of RAW-supporting cameras, photographers can now capture high-quality photos that are much more versatile than the pre-processed JPG photos that came before. Cameras with RAW-support are usually part of full-frame models, as well as more recent compact digital cameras. RAW images are much more versatile than JPGs, as they have more information in them. With the right software, a RAW can be converted to a JPG and put in a range of formats such as TIFF, PSD, or JPEG. There are other more specialized editing programs that are intended for various applications. Lightroom and ACDSee are example of software

DESCRIPTION: The project aspires to provide state of the art ideas and techniques in the field of gene therapy by development of bifunctional DNAzyme, E. coli gap-repairing recombinase and clustered regularly interspersed short palindromic repeats (CRISPR)/CRISPR-associated (Cas) system. It aims to develop novel reagents and methods that can be applied to enhance the curative effect of AIDS treatments and potentially to open a new era of non-gene therapies. There is great excitement about this new tool to treat human diseases. This program project application is comprised of three research projects. It is application of the bifunctional DNAzyme, E. coli gap-repairing recombinase and clustered regularly interspersed short palindromic repeats (CRISPR)/CRISPR-associated (Cas) system to fight human diseases. Project 1 aims to enhance the curative effect of AIDS treatments. The DNAzyme primes the Cas9 enzyme for DNA cleavage, provides a gene-specific trigger. The DNAzyme can be locked by DNA segment complementary to the guide RNA; this function will be designed for AIDS treatment. Thus, a new class of DNAzyme, a bifunctional DNAzyme will be developed and the efficiency of gene editing will be tested. Project 2 aims to build the theoretical basis and to test practicality of the eukaryotic gap-repairing recombinase. It will be a practical tool to use in gene therapies and to enhance the current recombinase reaction and to offer new proposals that the donor DNA can be cut and replaced, and to construct chimeric genes in a cell-free system. Project 3 will investigate the function of clustered regularly interspersed short palindromic repeats (CRISPR)/CRISPR-associated (Cas) system and develop a novel therapeutic approach. Preliminary results in CRISPR/Cas9-mediated genome editing in mammalian cells have been described. This tool can be applied to the targeting of a vast number of human genetic disorders, such as neurodegenerative diseases and muscular dystrophies.

Q: Unable to resolve module `` when deployed on Heroku I have been struggling with this one for a day or two now and I'm out of ideas. I've made a ReactJS app and now I'm trying to deploy it on Heroku. When I make a build locally it works, but when I make a build

Town offers first glimpse at plan for the future Tuesday, October 17, 2013 - 01:59 pm Tim Smith and Nick Banditti, of ANGA Environment, are called on to give an overview of the Sidewalk Town center area at an open house at the Southeast Iowa Planning and Economic Development District Headquarters. The Southeast Iowa Planning and Economic Development District will host an open house and walk tour at the Southeast Iowa Regional Planning and Economic Development District Headquarters from 4:30-7 p.m. Tuesday to showcase their vision for town centers in Southeast Iowa. The open house at the Southeast Iowa Planning and Economic Development District headquarters in Burlington is part of the Southeast Iowa Planning and Economic Development District annual Town Center Week, which will celebrate its 15th year. The tour is free and open to the public, but a reservation is required. A reservation can be made by calling 319-874-4761 ext. 1. A plaque will be presented to the town centers for the economic success and expansion of Southeast Iowa. The goal of the tour is to unveil the Sidewalk Town center plan, which is the vision for the future development of the town centers as well as surrounding recreational trails and green spaces. Included in the plan is the southeast Iowa Recreation Trail and the Brown Family Outdoor Center. Also featured is a map highlighting eight goals and objectives that will guide the five year process of bringing the first Sidewalk Town center to fruition. Present at the open house will be Tim Smith and Nick Banditti, of ANGA Environment, who will give an overview of the Sidewalk Town center area. Sidewalk Town centers are pedestrian friendly, mixed use, self-contained communities that feature a mix of commercial and residential development in one-acre urban and suburban lots that support a walkable, viable, vibrant town center that enhances the quality of life for residents, visitors and their economic impact in the area. Sidewalk Town centers provide an economic engine, attracting quality employers, increasing opportunities for residents, bringing new housing stock, revitalizing surrounding industrial areas and creating a vibrant destination for people. Tim Smith and Nick Banditti, of ANGA Environment, are presented with the plaque by Kyle Krieger, Southeast Iowa Planning and Economic Development District director. The Sidewalk Town center will provide the community with well-planned places to live, learn, shop, work and play.
