Q: Laravel returned array is not expected to contain keys other than 'id' I have a SQL query as follows: SELECT id, name, user_id FROM users WHERE type='default' I run this in my Laravel controller function as follows: $users = DB::table('users') ->select('id','name',DB::raw("(SELECT id, name, COUNT() AS total FROM types WHERE types.type = 'default' GROUP BY id) AS total")) ->where('type', '=', 'default') ->get(); return View::make('dashboard.index') ->with('users', $users); I am getting the above error: $users is expected to contain at least 'id, name, total' A: This line from you sql query: (SELECT id, name, COUNT() AS total FROM types WHERE types.type = 'default' GROUP BY id) AS total should be: (SELECT id, name, COUNT() AS total FROM types WHERE types.type = 'default' GROUP BY id) AS total_count or alias the count: (SELECT id, name, COUNT() AS total FROM types WHERE types.type = 'default' GROUP BY id) AS total_count or just change the db query. then you are fetching for a single column, not the complete row, so the only expected type should be an array. Assassin's Creed Rogue and Assassin's Creed Syndicate are both up on PS4 and Xbox One so it might be worth thinking about this more as a base to build upon rather than a launch title which is a shame. The ports are finely done, doing a better job of this than I was expecting from the debut trailers, and while the draw distance issue can be irritating at times, there's never any issue on the very small screen sizes this is being launched on. Cape Fear Botanical Gardens The Cape Fear Botanical Gardens or Cape Fear Botanical Gardens (CCBFG) is a botanical garden on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington, North Carolina. It is noted for its frilly leaves, and for its many native plants. This garden contains 1300 varieties of plants. It is open daily to the public, including holidays. History The garden was first established in 1966. It became the first botanical garden on the campus of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington in 1970, when it was named the Anne F. and Thomas Smith River Garden. Nearby is an arboretum which contains two pavilions. The Davidson Pavilion is named in honor of John A. D. Davidson (1895–1976), a former president of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. The Thompson Pavilion is named in memory of John B. Thompson, professor at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington. This garden was previously known as the Plant Science Building. The cake base used was a vanilla bean base, which I had to make twice to make it work. The first batch I didn't coat the cake pan well enough, and I started to think the batter might be too wet. After realizing what I did, I was glad I did make the cake - it makes a sweet buttery cake with chocolate chip swirled through it. The second time around I did exactly what I meant to do, i.e., add an egg wash and coat it well. I had to reheat the cake base to bake the cake, but it was worth it. The chocolate chip cookies on top can be extra-chip-y or not, depending on how many mini chocolate chips you use. I used the leftover dough to make store-bought chocolate chip cookies. The real fun and deciding factor for me was the glaze. My cake is so dark that using a white glaze wouldn't be a good fit, so I
