this is very inspiring! i already have this effect in my preset list so when i have some time i will start a new project. thank you. this is very inspiring! i already have this effect in my preset list so when i have some time i will start a new project. this is very inspiring! i already have this effect in my preset list so when i have some time i will start a new project. i picked it up when it went on sale, and used it to sell the last drum machine i owned.. tried it for a month or two and it was great, but i stopped for several reasons, but one of them was i liked the quality of the sounds better than the sounds included with my old voice module. it wasn't really until i tried to get them to work together that i discovered why they were really better as a separate plugin. it's just the drum machine had more sounds than i really needed. although you can pretty much get as many snares, toms, hat tricks, cymbal stacks and whoopie pies as you want inside kontakt, and there are ways to fix this with some of the internal sounds, you can only actually download so many percussion sounds. with seven plugins for snare and two for kick in that single kontakt library, you're limited to about a half dozen different drum kits. and even if you really know what you're doing, there's still the problem that adding a new kit on top of an existing library can result in gaps in the character of the drums for the drums that are in the library. wow, i really like it, i can't believe that people spend their money just to get all the sounds they want. this is my second kontakt 5, i'm happy to own two of it. i think it's definitely cool that you can also play back the sounds that you created in kontakt 5.

pretty cool stuff! there's some kind of issue with the work flow, though. the option to create a library of new presets appears in the menus when that menu is active, but if you have a library open (and you need to have a library open to save a new preset) and then go back to the library menu (there's no menu in the inspector, just one button), this option isn't there any more. which is annoying. the preset stuff is there though, and it can be edited. there are a whole host of modules you can download that will allow you to obtain the sounds used for the demo timeout crack and the time out demo, but we just wanted to give you a free download of the demo in it's full glory. these demos have been created using the new kontakt x 5 api and have been created using the kp pack 1 vst instrument library. we're all huge fans of the kontakt vst instruments here at audio school, and these demos have just given us more respect for the instrument and how powerful it can be. if you fancy getting a download for yourself, we've made it so easy! just head over to the rcl kit, and you'll find the downloads there: they're the same as those you'll find in the free demo pack, and it should look something like this (you'll need the rgr kit 2). if you're not sure which ones to pick, it doesn't matter, just pick the ones you like:

from the outset it was necessary to use kontakt 5 as the framework for this project. whilst i've been using version 4 for the best part of a year, at that point it had reached a point in time where it was rapidly becoming a 'closed-sourced' beast; costing around $600 to license. the compact and portable nature of kontakt 5, as an alternative, is a no-brainer. however, the re-architected instrument browser and the self-contained samples folder mean that no further licensing from kontakt is required - and there is a lot to be said for having an instruments folder completely separate from your samples, in the format that you choose to work with. 5ec8ef588b
