

Harris, Randy - Modern Physics (2E) [pdf].pdf 1

one of the neat things about a class in a place like the university of oulu is that, after a few years, you can encounter all of the faculty members you had and that now have a phd in your class. this is very common at institutions like tu oulu, where it's a very good practical experience to get to know everyone. so if you find yourself stuck on something because someone asked an annoying question and you don't remember his name, he'll likely remember you when you have a phd and someone asking the same questions that he might have in a tenure line position. machine learning : one of the really exciting things about ai is that it is a search problem. we have a really powerful search engine, but we only have a couple of databases, and they are incomplete. the ultimate goal of machine learning research is to develop a multi-database search engine. a recent paper on machine learning requirements from a physics perspective shows just how important it is for modern ai to have practical applications. a good paper on machine learning is this paper by hurley, augustus, taskar, sigurdsson, and wilks from the 2015 workshop on methods in machine learning for societal purpose. the workshop focused specifically on applications to social sciences and the need for data sets that are both large enough and of high enough quality for research purposes. the main paper in the workshop is this paper by hurley, sigurdsson, and taskar. a wonderful (and free) book from the introductory mathematics community is the introduction to mathematics by laudan, levine, and robbins . this is a very clear book aimed at any mathematics student. it is very popular in classrooms and easy to read. 5ec8ef588b
